There are 2 passages in this section. Read the passage and complete the outline below. You should write your answers briefly (in no more than three words).

Passage 1

A local telephone directory is sometimes called the white pages. This directory provides an alphabetic listing of names and telephone numbers and other telephone reference information. The front pages usually contain information about area codes, customer service, directory assistance, local, long-distance and international calls, time zones, rates, emergency numbers, and others items relating to telephone use.

The next section of the telephone directory typically contains the residence listing or entries (条目) of community. The third section contains business listing, or entries of local business and organizations. In some less populated or rural areas, the residence and business listing may be combined in one section.

Some local directories contain listing of local, state and federal government offices and agencies. These listing might be united into the business listing section, or they may be in a separate section of the phone book. These government listings typically are arranged by the name of the stage government and then by departures or agencies.

17. A telephone directory is also called _____.
18. Arrangement of its contents: Listing of names and telephone numbers: giving an _____ order.
19. Area codes and other useful information: contained in the _____.
20. Residence listing: provide in the _____ section of directory.
21. Government listing: given either in the business listing section or in a _____.

Passage 2

Technology and Books

What did people read before books and e-books? People started writing thousands of years ago. They cut pictures in stones. They wrote marks on wet clay (泥土). In Egypt, people wrote on papyrus (草纸) for other people to read. Papyrus was made from reeds (芦苇) that grew along the river. Papyrus was rolled up into a scroll (卷轴).

Hundreds of years ago, people started using parchment (羊皮纸). It was made from sheepskin. Pages of parchment were made into a book. Much later, books were made of paper. Every book had to be written out by hand. Then, in about the year 1455, Johannes Gutenberg made a printing press. It printed copies of a book more quickly.

E-books appeared around 1998. The letter “e” stands for electronic (电子的). You store and read e-books on an electronic device (设备). E-books use computer technology.

22. In Egypt, people wrote on papyrus for other people _____.

Passage 4

One day my best friend called me late at night on Saturday to invite me to her birthday party the next day. I was very excited to go there, but I needed to get permission (允许) from my parents. Luckily, they agreed but asked me to be back before 10 pm.

The next evening, my father dropped me to my friend's place and told me he would be back at 10. My friends and I had a good time at the party. Finally it was 10. I came out and started searching for my dad, but I could not find him. I waited there for 10 minutes. Then I decided to go back home on foot as my home was 20 minutes' walk. But I had never walked alone at night.

Suddenly I heard someone calling something. I was scared and I started walking fast. Then when I felt someone following me, I thought the person must be a bad guy. I hid behind some cars. I saw the follower searching for me. After some time, he disappeared. I came out slowly and ran towards my home.

Finally, I reached home. I hugged my mom and started crying. After some time, I relaxed and told everything to Mom. Later my father came and asked what happened. As soon as I started telling him my story, he said, "I saw you and I was screaming (大声喊) at you but you were running away from me. Suddenly you disappeared. I was searching for you there. I arrived at your friend's home late because the car broke down."

It turned out a misunderstanding, but my parents said they were really proud of my decision.
